Mr. Noori further said that both Muslims and minorities living here in Pakistan have paid the lot of sacrifices during Pakistan movement but still minorities and week communities are facing extortions and injustice. He also highlighted that The areas of interior Sindh have among the highest incidence of poverty in Pakistan and still 53 percent of the population in rural Sindh lives below the poverty line which should be a great concern for any government but since last 3 decade no government has paid its attention to solve the issues of interior rural Sindh.

Mr. Noori urged the government of Sindh to ensure greater political representation for religious minorities, especially Hindus, to ensure that communities can voice their concerns and demand protection. He said that increased political representation will provide these minorities with greater access to law-enforcement agencies and provincial and federal resources that can be used to promote communal harmony. He also emphasized to enhance the capacity of the legal system, including establishing mobile courts or other rapid mechanisms for dispute resolution

While addressing during the ceremony Chairman Sangham Educational Health Agriculture Development Association Mr. Ziaullah Khan and others speakers also the emphasized for the promotion of human rights and interfaith harmony especially in interior Sindh and said that all spiritual religions give the teachings to their followers to respect each other religions, Religious & social tolerance, peace and justice. To eradicate the terrorism and extremism from our beloved country we have to showed National solidarity. Speakers also urged to government of Sindh that solve the issues of religious minorities in interior Sindh especially and in Sindh generally must be its 1st priority.
